

Global Training Centre Takes Safety on the Road

The phrase safety on the road takes on a whole new meaning with the introduction of the Global Mobile Training Centre. This unique, state-of-the-art classroom on wheels that Global Training Centre unveiled this year is designed to provide companies with on-site safety training.

The full sized semi-trailer classroom will soon be in the Fort McMurray region, delivering the high quality, economical, time saving training that Global Training Centre has been notorious for providing to leading oil and gas companies across the world.

“We developed the Global Mobile Training Centre in response to requests from our valued clients,” says Debbie Shelley, CEO of Global Training Centre. “The new mobile unit is designed to deliver on-site training that provides companies with increased flexibility and savings realized through reduced man-hours, wages and travel costs,” Debbie continues.

The Global Mobile Training Centre was custom designed in the United States and features:

- A self contained classroom with state of the art technology (smart boards, video feedback to monitors during live evaluations, live training aids);
- Unique simulators that can be modified, providing different scenarios that most closely replicate a company’s specific needs: Fire Fighting, Confined Space, Fall Protection, Respiratory Protection, Gas Testing and more;
- Live fire training;
- A wide selection of hands-on safety equipment such as gas detection and respiratory protection;
- Client specific or Open Modular training programs based on the success of the industry renowned Safety 2000® Program.

The Global Mobile Training Centre is the newest addition to the Global Group of Companies, which includes Global Training Centre, an 18,000 square foot safety training school just outside of Strathmore, AB (30 minutes east of Calgary).
